Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 10 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Slightly fresher, clearer air moving southwards on Friday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Low cloud and fog plaguing some western and southern areas, cloud spreading across many areas by morning, with a warm humid feel. Some rain or drizzle in western fringes, heavier for a time across northwest Scotland. Breezy in the north.

Friday:
Low cloud increasingly restricted to the far southwest. Patchy rain edging southwards; brighter, fresher conditions following, odd showers in the far north. Bright and very warm across southeast England.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Widely fine and increasingly warm, locally hot, away from the far northwest which will become increasingly cloudy and breezy through Sunday with some rain. Cooler weather spreading southeast on Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.